

RIM Adoption Best Practices

Veeva recently hosted a webinar on RIM adoption tactics and found that only 16% of respondents had established ownership in place for regulatory affairs data. To learn how your organization can better prepare for an upcoming RIM implementation, read the best practices below.

What is the current status of regulatory affairs data ownership in your organization?

Building a Business Case

- Include all steps from initiation to operation
- Address business benefits, not just IT benefits
- Align with regulatory affairs strategy

Data Quality & Management

- Maintain a constant focus and plan
- Work closely with governance and data ownership
- Know your data model

Governance & Data Exchange

- Increase data exchange with external parties and other business units within the company
- Understand the impact that changes to the system may have on key regulatory processes

Organizational Changes

- Establish a single point of contact between business users and application support
- Empower IT and business teams to work together

Continuous Business Improvement

- Focus on continuous improvement throughout the organization, not just on keeping the system validated
- Collaborate with your technology partners to maximize value